TEACHERS REACH CONDITIONAL PAY AGREEMENT

Unqualified Opposition To Cuts is Followed by Such Decision

TEN PER CENT SLASH Platform Dictates Reductions Shall Be But Temporary

HARRISBURG, Dec. 30.—(INS)—Unqualified opposition of Pennsylvania school teachers to salary cuts was succeeded today by a conditional agreement to accept the proposed 10 per cent slash.

The platform of the Pennsylvania Education Association, in modified form, dictated that the reductions shall be only temporary; that they shall be in the same ratio as salary cuts for other government employees, and that the State endeavor to establish an income tax, at least one-half of which shall be earmarked for education.

The representatives of some 60,000 teachers demanded continuance and maintenance of the present high standards of the school system and condemned beliefs that the proverbial three R's are the sole fundamentals of sound education.

Basic provisions of the Edmonds Act must be retained, the teachers believe, agreeing only to "such amendments or reductions in minimum salaries as are necessary to meet the needs of the present emergency."

"In the case of reductions in the salaries of teachers and other educational officials, we favor such reductions as are commensurate with similar reductions in the salaries of other governmental services."

"Recognizing the injustice of our present system of taxation which places such heavy penalties on real estate ownership," the teachers urged "that the State accept the responsibility for payments of a larger share of the school costs by providing an income tax, at least one-half of which shall be definitely allocated for school purposes. We call attention to other forms of intangible wealth . . . which by the evasion of tax payments are escaping their full share of the money needed for the support of governmental agencies."

Philadelphia was selected for the 1933 meeting.

Gifts Galore for Winner In Courier Baby Derby

A baby derby is the latest thing in "sporting" events in this locality. And the winner of this unusual race is to be a tiny mite of humanity, with the finest of complexions, and with muscles not in very good practice when the race ends.

Here's what the "derby" is all about: A group of enterprising Bristol merchants, advertisers in the Courier, will shower with gifts the first baby born in this vicinity in 1933. The name, address, time of arrival will be advertised on January 5th in the columns of the Courier, and the name, address, doctor's report and birth certificate of all babies born after midnight December 31, 1932, must be in the hands of the Baby Page editor not later than five p. m. January 4th.

And the gifts—they include: Blanket, from Esther Bruner; free family wash for one week, done by Bristol Damp and Finish Laundry; $1 credit on Savings Account with Bristol Trust Company; bootie outfit, from Smith's Model Shop; comb and brush set, presented by Hoffman's Cut Rate Store; pair of shoes for baby, from Moffo's Shoe Shop; 10 quarts of Grade A nursery milk from Keystone Dairy Company.

UNEMPLOYED MAN KILLED

Philadelphia, Dec. 30.—An unemployed father was killed and two children were injured when an automobile struck them as they were trundling a push-cart with their scant belongings from one house to another. The father, Anthony Desalno, 42, died shortly after the accident. His daughters, Lucy, 16, and Theresa, 9, were less seriously injured. Rose, 7, and Anthony, 5, escaped injury. Miss Angelina Sodano, 22, South Langhorne, was arrested by the park guards as the driver.

EXPECT ADOPTION OF POWERS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—The proposal of Democratic leaders to give the incoming President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, broad powers to reorganize the Federal government, will be adopted, it was indicated today. Announcement of the decision to seek passage of a resolution at this session brought part criticism from the Republicans, but there were no signs of organized opposition. The power set for the incoming President is declared by Republicans to be the same refused President Hoover by the Democrats last year. Declining to commit himself on the proposal, Representative Snell, of New York, Republican house leader said:

"When President Hoover sent a special message last year asking such authority the Democrats charged him with usurping the power of Congress. If there is any virtue in the plan the Democrats will have sacrificed two years of economy by their objection."

FIND TWO BODIES

Monroe, Mich., Dec. 30.—Shot through the head and throat, and trussed with ropes, the bodies of two young men were found today in the rear seat of a large sedan, parked on a Monroe street. The victims could not be immediately identified. Police said one appeared to be about 18 or 20 and the other about 25 years of age. They appeared to have been strangled with rope before being shot. The death car was tentatively identified by the manager of a Detroit auto sales company as the car he sold "to a couple of fellows from Toledo."

TIME BOMB EXPLODES

Philadelphia, Dec. 30.—A time bomb exploded in the office of a bottling supply company here early today destroying a large quantity of bottles, shattering window panes and damaging the block nearby. Police believe the bomb was "planted" by racketeers who failed to extract contributions from the company.

RESCUE WORK AT END

Mowqua, Ill., Dec. 30.—The Shafter Coal Mine was quiet today; the last chapter of its story of death had been written. Late yesterday the rescue workers brought their five days of labor to an end when they stumbled on the last seven victims—dead. Thus all of those 54 bread winners who went down to the depths of the earth last Saturday morning have been accounted for. All are dead.

SEEK MAN WHO ESCAPED AT PENITENTIARY GATES

Lester Bennett Leaps From Auto As He Was About
To Start Sentence

ALLEGED "BAD ACTOR"

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 30.—(INS)—Lester I. Bennett, 20, of Jersey Shore, Pa., who leaped from the automobile of a sheriff at the very gates of the Eastern Penitentiary where he was to serve a sentence of three and a half to seven years, was sought in all sections of the city today.

Sheriff Frank Chamberlain, of Tioga county, from whom he escaped, warned police to "take no chance" with Bennett, who, he said, was a "bad actor." The escaped prisoner was presumably manacled unless he succeeded in breaking his fetters.

As the sheriff brought the prisoner to the jail last night, Bennett leaped from the car and escaped in an alley. Chamberlain desisted from shooting for fear of wounding a passerby in the crowded street near the penitentiary. A few weeks after his arrest on charges of breaking and entering, Bennett escaped from the small jail at Jersey Shore, but was recaptured.

Police declared there was a woman in Chamberlain's car at the time of the escape. Her identity was not disclosed.

Volunteer citizens joined in the search after the sheriff offered a $100 reward for the prisoner's return.

American's Slayer on Trial

Smiling, and apparently untroubled by his predicament, Guy Albert Davin (left), is shown in the prisoners' dock at Versailles assizes as he went on trial, charged with the brutal murder of Richard Wall, American playboy. The youthful slayer, scion of a well-to-do French family, freely confessed to the crime and told the court how he slew Wall and robbed the body of $300 because he needed money.

WOMAN INJURED WHEN RUN DOWN BY AUTO

Miss Alice Yeagle, Feaster-ville, May Be Critically Hurt

PAULMIER WAS DRIVER

An automobile driven by a former resident of Bristol struck a woman and inflicted what may prove to be fatal injuries, last night.

The machine was driven by Louis Paulmier, 59, Willow Grove, who is engaged in the insurance business. He was returning from Morrisville, where he had addressed a meeting of the Morrisville Rotary Club.

The woman injured is Miss Alice Yeagle, Feasterville, and she was taken to the Frankford Hospital, suffering with a fractured skull and possible internal injuries. Her condition was reported as critical.

The accident occurred when he was blinded by the lights of an approaching machine, Paulmier told Justice of the Peace Fred A. Keating before whom he was released under $1,000 bail to await the outcome of the young woman's injuries. Miss Yeagle was walking at the side of Somerset Pike, near the Philadelphia city line with her mother, in the same direction as Paulmier was driving, Highway Patrolman Coughlin reported.

Paulmier a number of years ago was manager of the Bristol office of the insurance concern.

"Waifs' Christmas" Title Of Play at Hulmeville

HULMEVILLE, Dec. 30.—"The Waifs' Christmas," a musical play, presented by a number of the Sunday School scholars at the annual Christmas entertainment in the Neshaminy M. E. Church, was thoroughly enjoyed last evening, as were also the other numbers by the smaller boys and girls.

The play was woven around the story of two waifs who had the Yuletide made one of joy for them, when Sunday School scholars invited the pair and their mother to a holiday entertainment, and presented them with gifts. Appropriate Christmas carols interspersed the speaking parts.

Other numbers on last evening's program, as announced by Superintendent Jesse C. Everitt, included: address of welcome, "Sonny" Smith; recitations, Marie and Anna Peterson, Harry Smith, "Billy" Campbell, Donald Haefner; vocal solo, Theron Foster; recitations, June Thorpe, Junior Winder, Erda Smith; song, primary department; recitations, Franklin Readler, Earl and Dorothy Everett, Phyllis Gillingham, John Bunting, Evelyn Phillips; exercise, class of girls; recitations, Ethel Wheeler, Audrey Lee Lathrop; exercise, class of boys.

Each scholar received a box of chocolate candy. On Sunday next those who haven't been absent from sessions more than two Sundays in the past year, will receive a book.

Barbers, Physicians, Many Others Minus Auto Tags

HARRISBURG, Dec. 30.—(INS)—With 1932 licenses automatically expiring Monday, 10,000 barbers, 8,000 physicians, almost 4,000 dentists and many others today had failed to apply for 1933 licenses.

Dr. C. D. Koch, deputy superintendent of public instruction, attributed the decline to the December examinations which disqualified 63 per cent of the applicants. Special permits may be obtained until March, but an extra fee of $3.00, in addition to the regular renewal rate of $2.00, will be charged, Dr. Koch said.

LOOK UPON BUCKS CO. AS "PROMISED LAND"

250 Families Will Endeavor to Eke Living from 5000 Acres

PAULMIER WAS DRIVER

Central Bucks County is being looked upon by 250 depression-worn families as the followers of Moses looked upon what awaited at the end of their eager trek to the "Promised Land."

For that many families have started a movement which they think will give them an honest living on a tract of 5,000 acres of rich soil near Doylestown, according to Mack Parker, writer in a recent issue of the Philadelphia Record. "At least this group of unfortunate feel they can earn their daily bread," stated Parker in the article.

Leaders of the movement have petitioned the Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia, it is stated, for a charter for the organization to be known as "The Pioneer American Agricultural Colony." This organization will be non-sectarian and its purpose will be to establish an agricultural community and instill in the minds of its members the principles of American citizenship.

Rude shacks, the leaders of the movement informed Mr. Parker, will be thrown up for temporary shelter until the members of the colony can build their future castles with their own hands.

In the group of 250 members of the organization there is a family population of 1200 men, women and children. Practically all are Philadelphia unemployed. Among the members are a number of former farmers who left the farm to seek higher wages in the cities, only to have their hopes broken with the coming of the depression.

Max Ellman, of 1944 East Moyamensing avenue, Phila., according to the article, talked the affair over with a group of neighbors and after some consideration, it was decided to organize the "back to the farm movement." An organization was finally completed with the following officers:

President, Max Schwartz, of 1824 South Fifth street, Phila.; vice president, Hyman Eisenkief, of 2010 South Fifth street, Phila.; secretary, Charles Pollack, of 432 Cross street, Phila.; treasurer, Lewis Barth, of 421 Bailey street, Phila.

"The treasurer of the organization will not have much to do at first," it was explained to Mr. Parker. "We have practically been assured of the land which is located near the National Farm School, not far from Doylestown, and our backers are willing to stake us on what we are sure can be gained from our tilling of the soil. Our crops will be pledged for loans that we may have to make."

Bernard Cohen, attorney with offices in the Franklin Trust Building, Phila., is deeply interested in the organization. Cohen said yesterday that the land in question has been practically assured.

When interviewed, Herbert D. Allman, president of National Farm School, said that he was not cognizant of the fact that an effort was being made to secure land near the school, although he did know that a movement was on foot to organize a co-operative farm movement by some Philadelphia group.

Mr. Allman said that members of the group called to see him on several occasions. While sympathetic with their desires and needs, he felt that the National Farm School could not give them any direct aid in as much as all and more of their funds were needed to carry on their educational institution during these times of depression when generous subscribers were compelled to cut their donations.

"I feel that practical as well as

ARRANGE ANNIVERSARY, FALLSINGTON MEETING

Orthodox Meeting Established in May of Year

PENN ATTENDED THERE

FALLSINGTON, Dec. 30.—At the Orthodox Meeting house on May 20, 1933, there will be celebrated the 250th anniversary of said meeting. This is expected to be a very fine affair. Over 1000 persons are expected, as all meetings throughout the State will be represented, also the Philadelphia Historical Society.

There will be a collection of old relics on display in the school house, belonging to the Friends.

William Penn attended meeting here, and also attended a wedding and signed the certificate, which will be on display.

At that time there will also be many trees dedicated to the different meeting houses throughout the State. Prominent speakers are also expected.

ARREST FIVE AT FUNERAL OF MARTIN GOODBRED

Fight Follows Argument Over
Place of Funeral of Deceased Parent

TO BE GIVEN HEARING

Five Philadelphians were served with warrants yesterday afternoon while attending the funeral of their father at the home of a brother in Newportville.

All five are charged with malicious mischief and are to appear before Justice of Peace James Laughlin tonight.

Those to appear are:

Martin Goodbred and Alice Goodbred, H street, below Ontario; Edward Goodbred, 703 Belgrade street; Mrs. Helen McKinski and Mrs. Elsie Haering, 702 Belgrade street.

The warrants were issued upon the information of Charles Goodbred, Newportville, whose father, Martin Goodbred, 70, was found dead Monday morning.

It appears that the brothers and sisters of the deceased were informed of their father's death and came to the home of Charles Goodbred Monday evening. There, it is stated, an argument ensued as to whether the father should be buried from the Newportville residence or from Philadelphia.

A fight is alleged to have taken place with the result that chairs were broken and stones tossed through the windows of the house from the outside.

The warrants were served by State Police yesterday afternoon as the funeral services were about to be held at the Goodbred home in Newportville. The services continued, however, without interruption and were conducted by the Rev. William S. Heist, pastor of South Langhorne and Southampton Lutheran churches. Burial was made in Cheltenham Hills Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Konefal, 246 Jackson street, passed part of the holiday week in Garfield, N. J., visiting Mrs. Konefal's parents.

Miss Mabel Bickel, New Buckley street, has been a holiday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whitney, Philadelphia. Miss Bickel's father, William Bickel, spent two days in Quakertown with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Omrod, 244 Jackson street, were Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Omrod, Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Forwood, 274 McKinley street, spent the week-end and Monday in Moorestown, N. J., as guests of Mrs. Bridget Laverty.

DRIVE TO PASS MEASURE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—Backers of the Philippine independence bill today prepared for a drive to pass the measure over a presidential veto as it was sent to the White House for action by President Hoover. The overwhelming vote in the House on original passage and the approval of the conference report yesterday 171 to 16 indicated that the necessary two-thirds majority to overcome a veto could be obtained in that body. Although President Hoover has given no direct word, it is expected he will supply the veto when he returns from Florida. The measure has been severely criticized by administration sources. Under the measure as it goes to the President, the Islands would be given their freedom ten years after a Constitution has been adopted. A Constitution must be submitted to the President within two years.

LIQUOR VIOLATORS SHOW DECREASE IN 1932 IN THE COUNTY

95 Defendants Before Court
On Felonious Entry
Charge

58 ON LIQUOR CHARGE

48 Juvenile Cases Called
During the Past
Year

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 30.—Liquor law violations in 1932 in Bucks county show a considerable decrease according to the criminal court statistics furnished today by Theodore Yochum, of Quakertown, clerk of Quarter Sessions Court, and Deputy Clerk Rae Myers.

There were 95 defendants before the court on charges of felonious entry or breaking and entering, the largest number of defendants for any particular crime. Second came larceny, with thirty-eight defendants.

There were fifty-eight violators of the liquor law in court, thirty for manufacturing liquor, twenty-two for possessing liquor and six for transporting liquor. During 1932 there were twenty-nine defendants charged with operating automobiles while under the influence of intoxicating liquor that were disposed of.

It is interesting to note that year after year, there is an increase in the number of defendants who enter pleas of guilty after the case is called for trial. In 1932 there were 246 defendants who pleaded guilty, sixty-six were convicted by juries and sixty other defendants acquitted.

There were approximately forty-eight juvenile cases handled in 1932, the Court records show.

During the year there were thirteen defendants sentenced to the Eastern State Penitentiary, seven to Huntingdon Reformatory, one to Glen Mills and another was placed in charge of the Home Missionary Society. A large number were sentenced to the Bucks County Prison, the record of which will be compiled in the annual report of Headkeeper Grant Myers, of the County Prison.

There was but one murder case disposed of in court this year, but one other was continued until the February term of 1933 for trial. Stanley Wiemer, who shot and killed Elmer D. Bartholomew at the Bartholomew farm in Bedminster township, was committed to Glen Mills, and later was transferred to the State Hospital at Allentown. The other murder case to be tried next February is that of Charles Arwine, Newtown unemployed foundry worker, charged with the death of 15-year-old Frances Remper.

There were thirty-one defendants charged with assault and battery this year, fifteen were charged with burglary in various degrees, five with carrying a pistol without a license, thirty-seven with either desertion or non-support or both, thirty-eight with larceny, twenty-two with robbery of various degrees, five with violating traffic or motor vehicle laws, seven with violation of the liquid fuel act.

There were ten appeals from summary convictions in 1932. Two defendants were charged with attempt to extort money, one with writing a letter of extortion in the famous Lindbergh baby kidnapping case, one with abortion, two with receiving stolen property, four with involuntary manslaughter, three with malicious mischief, three with keeping houses of ill fame, five with fraudulent conversion, four with forgery, one with false pretense, six with embezzlement, five with fornication and bastardy, two with bigamy, eight with stealing automobiles, two with assault and battery with intent to kill, five with arson, three with adultery, one with obtaining money under false pretense, one with being a nuisance, three for malfeasance in office, and four sureties of the peace cases.

PROBING THE DEEP

Man really knows little about the ocean floor. In 1773 a sounding of only 683 fathoms made history. The great Philippine trench has been sounded to a depth of 35,400 feet, but until Dr. William Beebe descended to a depth of 2200 feet in his bathysphere recently man's exploration of the deep had been confined to the upper few hundred feet.

Now Simon Lake, the inventor of the submarine, believes he has created in his midget submarine a vehicle destined to take men to the very uttermost depths of Davey Jones' Locker. He is working on the perfecting of the 22-foot Explorer with that in view.

From the ocean floor there is much to be learned. It is the source of most earthquakes. Oceanography is a science in which the blind spots exceed the known. The fauna and flora of the ocean bottom promise an unlimited source of food and mineral supply which awaits only the evolving of an economical means of garnering it.

There is a possibility that the conquest of the ocean depths will revolutionize man's mode of living. Science knows just enough about what is going on down there to realize that the actuality will beggar the imagination.

Fame far greater than that won by him through the invention of the war submarine will accrue to Simon Lake if he unlocks the caverns of the deep.

POSTAL SAVINGS PROFIT

So unaccustomed is Uncle Sam to realizing a profit on his postal operations that he is to be pardoned when he makes much ado about an item of profit. Enthusiasm at such a time is to be expected in anyone.

Postal savings are netting the government a profit besides teaching thrift and providing a safe place for private savings. All in all the postal savings system has proved a useful and satisfactory function of government.

The government pays 2 per cent interest on these deposits and receives 2½ per cent interest from its bank depositories, netting it a profit of one-half per cent, less overhead. Its net profit in the last fiscal year was $835,012. For the current fiscal year it is estimated by Postmaster General Brown at more than a million dollars.

More important to the country than this margin of profit is the stabilizing effect of the $785,000,000 of postal savings deposits on the financial structure of the country. They have helped many banks hard pressed for cash and lured hoarded millions from unsafe hiding places.

Oddly, the banks are paying the government 2½ per cent interest at the same time that the government is paying them as little as one-eighth of one per cent interest, and the banks like it.

A level head isn't flat.

How does a fellow whose habitual answer is, "Well, yes and no," vote on a referendum?

A great politician is a man who can make the world believe his empty head is an open mind.

The nice thing about a bad start is it gives you more to brag about after you get ahead.

Norman Brokenshire Tunes Up Chesterfield Radio Stars for the New Year

The vast army of radio fans who are always looking for something new in the broadcast sky will be treated to a stellar display when Chesterfield's 1933 programs go on next week. Six nights a week—every day except Sunday—at 9 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, stars of comedy, music and song will come through the Columbia Broadcasting System over the largest coast-to-coast hook-up in radio.

Tom Howard and his partner George Shelton are new to the ether waves.

An exclusive Chesterfield find, they are reported to have turned down some attractive stage offers, including one with "Of Thee I Sing," for an opportunity to present a new comedy-team idea on the radio. Theatre goes all over the world are familiar with Howard's famous comedy sketch, "The Spy," introduced in the "Greenwich Village Follies" of 1928. It subsequently won the N. Y. Critics award as the best comedy sketch of the year and was translated into many languages. Howard is a real "scoop" for Chesterfield. In the past ten years the famous comedian's time has been filled to capacity with stage and movie productions, and he was finally persuaded to carry his inimitable drolleries into the realm of radio. The team of Howard and Shelton makes its radio debut on Tuesday night, January 3, and will be on every Tuesday and Friday thereafter. An added feature on those two nights will be Elizabeth Barthell, novelty singer, in special vocal numbers.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

After supper Wolfe had lit his pipe and gone out for a tramp along one of the high roads. He wanted to be alone with himself, to thrash things out, to get a grip of the immediate future. He had taken the Wannington road past the Lombardy poplars by old Crabbe's house, with "Pardons" a black mass in the moonlight on the opposite hillside, and white mists hanging about the Valley of the Wraith.

The situation was about as desperate as any adventures "dragon slayer" could desire. Wolfe doubted whether he had a single influential well-wisher in Navestock. A man cannot live and fight on air and honour, and this sum of forty pounds seemed almost too precious to be squandered in a mere skirmish. All the paraphernalia of the professional life were lacking. If he determined to stand his ground in Navestock he would start without a single patient; and even in the event of patients coming to him he would need drugs and instruments that he did not possess. He had not even a midwifery bag, that sacred symbol distinctive of general practice. He had no quarters, no brass plate, no horse to pull or carry him.

But as to retreating without a battle, that was another matter. Wolfe had not told Threadgold that he had duplicates of the map and papers that had been destroyed. Moreover, he was not without lines of advance for a possible attack. At Wannington, fifteen miles away, the Radical weekly paper had been pushing a campaign against certain corrupt conditions that existed in Wannington itself. The editor of the Wannington Clarion was one of those aggressive, red-headed, little men who are loathed with a great loathing by the representatives of vested interests. Wolfe saw a chance here. The Wannington Clarion circulated in Navestock, and the editor might be ready to publish a few facts in his columns.

In Navestock all local authority rested with the Navestock Board of Guardians. Montague Threadgold was the medical representative, and the doctor for the Navestock Union, Robert Flemming acted as chairman, and the men who served with him were the very men whom Wolfe would be attacking. Jasper Turrell was one of the gods behind the gods. The tradesmen, such as old Hubbard, and Butler the butcher, who served on the vestry and also as guardians, were bound by considerations of trade to the territorial magnates. Again—among the Navestock justices who held ex-officio seats upon the Poor Law Board, were to be found Turrell, Wilks, and their intimate neighbours. The law itself was crude, complex, clumsy, and indecisive. As yet no central authority could compel the local authorities to remedy corrupt conditions. Reform and agitation were at work, but in the rural districts the people were at the mercy of privilege, apathy, and obstinate selfishness. Outdoor relief itself was still a scandal, a means by which local tradesmen could vote themselves money through the pockets of the poor.

Wolfe thought of the Rev. Robert Flemming. This man, as chairman of these ruling bodies, should have a leading voice in dictating local policy and local reform. It seemed good to Wolfe that he should go to Robert Flemming, lay all the facts before him, and appeal to him as a man of honesty and honour. It was possible that nothing much would come of it, but at all events these Navestock "Fathers" might have the truth thrust under their noses. They could talk the facts away, vote them into oblivion, yet there might be one or two men among them who had consciences and tongues.

Wolfe thought also of Jess Masceall and her mother, and here his manhood was concerned more deeply, and, whatever the future might bring him, this "Maid of Honor" would still hold her power. Wolfe felt very sensitively about Jess. He would sooner have forfeited the goodwill of a whole town than have cast the least shadow of a disillusionment across her mind. To Wolfe she was the mirror of what life should be, clear, frank, and untarnished. She stirred in him all the chivalrous tenderness and awe that are very passionate realities in the heart of a true man.

He told himself that he would go up to Moor Farm tomorrow and see Mary Masceall. She was a woman to whom he could open his heart. He felt that she would understand him and that he could trust her, and that she would trust him in return.

Meanwhile, in the little private parlor of "The Crooked Billet" Inn, Mr. Raggs and Adam Grinch, old Crabbe's gardener, had spent half an hour over their pipes. Grinch had left the inn before John Wolfe returned. He had gone straight to Josiah Crabbe's stone house where the Lombardy poplars struck like silver spires into the moonlight.

Robert Flemming had postponed the writing of his Sunday sermon until necessity and Saturday morning brought him reluctantly to his study chair. Flemming was a man without utterance. He had to labour things out, to heave himself restlessly in his chair, to struggle with the feeblest inspiration in order to compel it to serve him. His spiritual life had grown flabby and commonplace, even as he had put on flesh imperceptibly during the last ten years. Repetition had become a habit with him, and he distributed his teaching with the placid perfunctoriness of a baker delivering loaves.

When Wolfe rang the rectory bell that morning, Robert Flemming's sermon book lay upon his desk, with a few slovenly sentences written across the right-hand page. Flemming himself was standing by the window, sharpening a quill pen. Inspiration had failed him, and Flemming, like many a heavy man who finds it easier to use his hands than his head, would try to help his ideas to flow by fiddling with his knife or his fly-book, or with some mechanical crank he had in hand.

"Now that the harvest is being gathered in, I think, dear friends, that we should recall to ourselves the infinite mercies showered down upon us by Our Father in Heaven. When I look round this neighbourhood of ours, I often feel how blessed we are, how supremely happy in the peace and the goodwill that alone make life worth living."

"Do we not tell ourselves that God is good, and that—"

Flemming had become bogged here, and had been unable to extricate himself from the idealess mood into which he had floundered. He had fidgeted, bitten his quill, got up and drawn the blinds, and felt vaguely irritated because the sun was shining and making it a penance for him to sit indoors.

The thought struck him as he stood by the window with quill and penknife.

"How is it I have so little to say to these people? The hot weather, perhaps! It dries one up like a pond."

But he felt irritated and dissatisfied.

"A gentleman, sir, wants to see you."

Flemming had not heard the door open. He turned rather sharply, his grey eyebrows coming close together.

WIGS AND VEILS ARE LATEST ON MILADY'S PARIS STYLE SHOW

Growing Popularity of Wig for Daytime Wear is Apparent

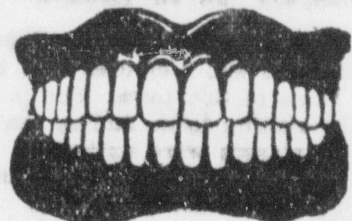

By Alice Langelier
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS.—Wigs are waxing most important on women's heads this winter. Copying the old Eastern method of varnishing their tresses to keep them in place, many French women are taking up wigs to give the same comfortable effect without injury to their lovely locks.

The growing popularity of this article for daytime wear seems to be accounted for by the fact that wigs give so little trouble. When modern Eve dons her varnished wig in the morning, she need not worry about the set of perfect curls or more or less permanent waves until she takes off her wig with her hat at night.

French wig-makers, always past masters at making them, are even surpassing themselves in this new varnished variety which produces a most natural appearance with no stiffness.

The importance of clear, sparkling, youthful eyes is even more stressed in these days of eye-veils which by no means conceal tired, wrinkled eyelids and crowsfeet. Eyes, moreover, are the focus-point of the new hats and hairdressing tends to become more and more a frame for the eyes and forehead.

Eyeveils are more and more bewildering in their variety and over cocktails one may see a plain one with a sparkling crescent in one corner and another with geometrical motifs. Some veils go far below the chin now. All colors are popular. Eye specialists are advising the women to wear the eye-veil either above the eye-level or well below it, otherwise a tendency to squint is discovered, especially when the veil has a patterned border.

HAWKS FINALLY WIN DEFEATING K. OF C. FIVE

By T. M. Juno

The Hawks finally broke into the win column of the Bristol Basketball League. Last night in the Italian Mutual Aid Hall they won a close victory over the Knights of Columbus five, the score being 25-22.

Sixteen of the victors' points came in the second half after the Caseys had mounted a 15-9 lead at the end of the first half. During the second half the Radcliffe street boys fell off entirely and made a poor showing.

PAPER MAKERS LOSE BY ONE-SIDED SCORE

By T. M. Juno

Patterson Lumbering Paper Company did a wonderful job of guarding Ray Dorsey, sharp-shooting star of the Aces team last night but in doing so allowed "Bud" Tulio and "Ad" Roe to roam loose with the result that these two players scored 17 and 13 points respectively, which was enough for the Aces to score a 51-31 over the Patterson team.

The entire damage done to the Paper Mill team came in the third session which netted the Aces twelve points while the Paper Makers were blanked from the field and foul line. Score at the half time stood 22-18 in favor of the Aces.

"Bud" Dorsey was sinking them in for the losers scoring six field goals and two fouls for a total of fourteen points. Joe Alta also did good work for the winners.

County Farm Agent William F. Greenwalt when informed of the published news service story this morning, said that he had heard nothing of the proposed co-operative farm coming to Bucks county.

Another well known Bucks county farmer simply scoffed at the idea when informed of the proposed project today. Although he did not care to

Diamond Heroes of 1932

By BURNLEY

IN looking back over the 1932 baseball season, the glorious achievements of Joe McCarthy and his all-conquering Yankees stand out in bold relief. The powerful Yank machine crushed all opposition in the American League, to win the flag by an overwhelmingly large margin, and then proceeded to humiliate the Cubs, National League champions, winning the World Series in four straight games.

Outstanding among the individual diamond stars who shone brightly during the 1932 season were Jimmy Foxx and Chuck Klein, who were nominated as the most valuable players in their respective leagues.

Klein, the Phillies' broad-shouldered batting ace, was almost unanimously accorded the honors in his league, receiving 78 out of a possible 90 ballots from the baseball experts. Chuck is generally conceded to be one of the greatest all-around batsmen in the majors, and last season he hung up a fine record in every offensive department, besides showing speed and skill on the defense.

Foxx, the American League's nominee as most valuable player of 1932, narrowly missed tying Babe Ruth's historic home run record last season in winning the big league home run crown with a total of 58 four-ply blows. He also led both leagues in runs driven in with 167, and finished with a batting average of .364, being tossed out for the hitting title by Dale Alexander of the Boston Red Sox in the last week of the season.

This same Alexander deserves lots of praise for his fine feat in winning the major league batting crown, and he has also improved tremendously in his defensive work covering the initial sack.

Among the leading pitchers of 1932, Alvin "General" Crowder of the Washington Senators seems to deserve the palm as the season's best. Crowder won more games than any other big league hurler last season, chalking up 26 victories to Lefty Grove's 25, and closing the year with a winning streak of 15 straight games still intact.

The leading National League hurler was young Lonnie Warneke of the Chicago Cubs, but Lonnie found the going rather rough when he had to face the Yankees' Murderer's Row in the World Series.

Four stars of the invincible Yankee team ranked high in the balloting for most valuable player honors. Gehrig, Ruth, Gomez and Lazzeri being listed among the first eight when the baseball writers' votes were counted.
